Expo a Big Hit with DEPpers

More than 400 NRD San Francisco Delayed Entry Program (DEP) personnel and family members participated in a DEP Family Day Exposition Aug. 8 aboard USS Hornet (AS-12). The event was hosted by Commander, Navy Installations Community Programs in conjunction with Commander, Navy Recruiting Command (CNRC).

DEPpers heard presentations by representatives of several naval organizations, including Navy Morale, Welfare and Recreation, Navy Exchange, Fleet and Family Support Centers (FFSC) and Military One Source.

CAPT (Retired) Mary Ann Margosian of Military One Source said that the program is important it can have an effect on mission accomplishment. "A ready Sailor is a focused Sailor," Margosian said. "We do this because people shouldn't be worried about financial things at home." One Source offers counseling on a variety of issues, including deployments, financial, retirement and education. Counselors are available "Think of us as an FFSC in your pocket," she continued. The program offers services in 140 languages.

RADM (Retired) Tom Mercer, who spoke to DEPpers, called the DEP Expo a great opportunity. "It's a very fast track," Mercer said. "It's invaluable to get a smattering about what life in the fleet is all about."

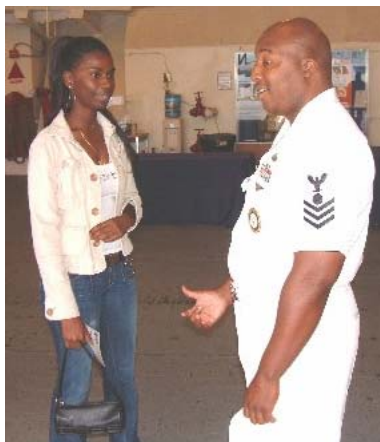

Mercer noted that events like the DEP Expo can aid recruiters in keeping DEPpers motivated. "I know it's getting tougher out there. I really appreciate what [recruiters are] doing."

Ruhle Odom, organizer of the expo, said that ensuring recruiting success is its purpose. "We do these [expos] to help CNRC, were making a positive impression to motivate DEPpers."

One DEPper, Michael Mattingly, was motivated especially by being aboard Hornet. "This reminds me of my childhood," said Mattingly, who comes from a Navy family. "I'm going into the nuclear field and I'm really looking forward to it."

Thrift Savings Plan Options go on autopilot

What's Up: Military members have surpassed civil-service employees as the most numerous participants in the federal Thrift Savings Plan, a pretax investment program similar to corporate 401(k) plans. As of May, the number of military participants – 462,000 – surpassed participants in the civil service retirement system – 442,000 – and military participation is expected to keep climbing. However, not all services participate equally. By service, 33 percent of Navy members, 23 percent of Coast Guard members, 22 percent of Air Force and Marine Corps members and just 12 percent of Army members participate in the Thrift Savings Plan.

What's Next: "This variance among the services is likely due to the variance in the resources and emphasis each service devotes to the TSP," the Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board said in the published minutes of a recent board meeting. Greater interest in the TSP should be generated by the announcement, expected soon, of as many as five new TSP Lifecycle Funds," which will allow participants to invest on autopilot in accounts aimed at a specific retirement window. For example, consultants earlier this year recommended funds geared to the years 2040, 2030, 2020 and 2010, as well as a fund for those currently retired. Investment managers would gradually shift an individual's fund holdings from riskier stocks to safer bonds and U.S. Treasury bills as the target retirement date approaches. Note: "Open Season" is now permanent. Sailors may now modify contribution plans at any time, rather than waiting for predesignated periods.

Command Philosophy — “Mission First, People Always”

Mission

NRD San Francisco’s primary mission is to recruit the highest quality men and women to serve as our Navy’s newest officers and enlisted personnel. We must recruit individuals consistent with our Navy Core Values if our operational Shipmates are to achieve victory in combat operations in defense of our nation’s interests. All our training and professional development must be focused foremost on our mission. We are all vested, and NRD San Francisco’s success depends on the performance of each of us, military and civilian.

Guiding Principles (Three “C”s)

Our guiding principles – “The NRD SF Way” – will keep us focused on achieving mission and ensuring the professional and personal development of our personnel.

Country!

It is a privilege and an honor to serve our Nation, Navy, and each other. By answering the call to public service, we are accepting the responsibilities of being held to a higher standard. Our families, neighbors and Nation are counting on us, and we will make them proud.

Core Values!

We will uphold the highest standards of HONOR, COURAGE and COMMITMENT in all aspects of our lives, on and off-duty, 24/7. We will demand excellence of our Shipmates and ourselves. Individual responsibility is paramount; we will uphold the highest ideals of personal and professional integrity and ethics. Together, we will “accelerate our lives” and “stay strong.”

Covenant Leadership!

The lifeblood of “Team San Francisco is people. Mission First... People Always will continue to be our mantra: we will achieve our mission as a Team, and we will take care of our people and their families as individuals. The chain of command will endeavor to provide opportunity for personal and professional growth. Whatever your role, mentoring is one of your most important responsibilities; lead by example and take care of each other. As leaders, we are all charged with ensuring the safe execution of our mission -- on and off duty. Be safe... whether driving your Government Vehicle or the family sedan. Team San Francisco is not about you or me; it is each of us with our unique talents and skills, working together to successfully accomplish our mission.

My Bottom Line

People are our most important asset. I am humbled by your motivation, professionalism, and dedication to duty. I will ensure you are afforded the opportunity to achieve. I expect each of you to strive to “make a difference” and live every day by our Navy’s Core Values. As Team San Francisco, we will continue to be “The Golden Gate to the Fleet.” When our Sailors and families succeed, the Navy succeeds.

CDR Sapera takes Command of NRD San Francisco

CDR Lance S. Sapera relieved CAPT (Select) Annie B. Andrews as commanding officer of Navy Recruiting District San Francisco in a Change of Command ceremony held aboard USS Hornet (CVS-12) April 1.

CAPT Jerry R. Anderson, Commander of Navy Recruiting Region West and guest speaker, praised the accomplishments of Andrews, the recruiters and support staff of the district as having continued a “legacy of excellence” illustrated by 50 consecutive months of new contract attainment and more than nine consecutive years of hiping the required number of Sailors and officers to the fleet.

“Under Commander Andrews’ leadership, the district has answered the bell for every important mission we’ve asked of them,” Anderson said. “Your hard work led to the enlistment of some 5,000 of the brightest young men and women America has to offer into the United States Navy.”

Andrews thanked the military and civilian personnel of the district for their efforts and sacrifices in support of the command’s mission. “You accepted the challenge of the Chief of Naval Operations to engage in the ‘Battle for People’ and you have succeeded and will continue to succeed,” she said.

Anderson said there was no one in Navy Recruiting more suited to take command of the district than Sapera, who assumes command after serving as the district’s executive officer since December 2003. “There is no doubt in my mind: he is the right person to lead NRD San Francisco to continued success in the coming months.”

Sapera said he was “set up for success” by his predecessor, family and recruiters. “I’ve been asked a lot lately, ‘XO, are you ready?’ As I consider all the tremendous support I have from family, friends and shipmates – combined with the amazingly talented men and women that make up Team San Francisco, the answer is, ‘How can I not be?’”

Sapera praised recruiters for accepting a challenging assignment that is often completely different from their military specialties. “What you do is incredibly important,” he said. “Recruiting is the toughest shore duty assignment in the Navy.”

Riding To Success

Gordone Finds Recruiting Inspiration at the Rodeo

Being a successful Recruiter-in-Charge is a challenging occupation in itself, but stack a personal mission of becoming a champion bull rider and “the plate is full.”

It’s a little-known fact, but OSC(SW) David B. Gordone

Fallon,” Gordone said. “So far, it has worked!”

“I knew I wouldn’t have much of a personal life chasing down both dreams of being Station of the Year and bull riding champion and I have sacrificed a great deal, but life’s too short to stand on the sidelines. I’ve always wanted to be able to look back and see significant achievement in everything I can do.”

One might ask how a 40-year-old chief can stay competitive in the bull riding, which is dominated by 20-something men, but the Chief already took into account at age 38 became an All-Military Bull Riding Champion and an International Professional Rodeo Association Bull Riding Champion in the Western Region in 2003 while at the same time handling RINC duties at NRS Reno, Nev.

Gordone didn’t earn station of the year honors in 2003, but this year he set out to prove that he could take NRS Fallon (a previously failed station) to the top Small Station of the Year. “I’ve shifted the focus and determination from everything I learned while riding and competing as a bull rider and applied those lessons this year to NRS that he would have to be in the best shape of his life or scrap the whole idea. “I realized early on that bull riding is very unforgiving and will test the very core of one’s resolve to reach deep down and extract victory against all odds, Gordone said. “I liken it to recruiting.”

Although recruiting has been his priority this year, Gordone is actually poised to win the Gold Rush Circuit Bull Riding Championship, which is comprised of rodeos in California and Nevada. Recently, he competed in the National Indian Finals Tour Rodeo in Fallon, Nev.

Nurse Recruiter Brings Home the Gold

LT Lauren Nilsen helped the women's All-Navy Volleyball Team win the Armed Forces Volleyball Championship in Colorado May 16.

Nilsen, an outside hitter, is also a Canvasser Recruiter

University, first joined the Navy in 1992, when she was selected for the Nurse Bachelors Degree Completion Program. Her active duty stations include Camp Pendleton, Calif., Naval Air Station Rota, Spain and Marine Corps Air Station Cherry Point, N.C. She has also worked as a Navy Reservist in Honolulu and New York City.

One of the highlights of Nilsen's Navy athletic career was her participation in the Military World Games in Viterbo, Italy in 2001, where she won a gold medal. "We were the first team of women from and a Navy Nurse. The Long Island, N.Y. native is an eight-time All-Navy selection and has served as captain four times. She has also represented the U.S. five times in national and international competitions with the U.S. All-Armed Forces team.

The Navy women's team took first place in the Armed Forces Volleyball tournament with a dramatic 25-16, 25-16, 19-17 come-from-behind playoff win over Air Force. After defeating Air Force in the opening round of the tournament, Navy lost the rematch in the second round. The stage was set for the highly competitive final match.

Nilsen, who played college volleyball at Duquesne

the U.S. to win the tournament," Nilsen said. "You actually compete against true Olympians from other countries because they have military affiliations."

Nilsen, who is only the second recruiter ever to participate in Navy Sports, recommends the experience. "It is a huge honor," she said. "I'm grateful that the command allowed me to play and represent Navy Recruiting District San Francisco." She called All-Navy Sports "a great program not many people know about" and encouraged others to try out.

Nilsen's next goal is to compete in the AVP Pro Beach Volleyball Tour next summer and in the 2007 Military World Games in India. She credits volleyball with improving her life personally and professionally. "It's given me a balanced life," she said.

Born to Recruit

District Recruiters work San Jose “Born to Fight” Martial Arts Tournament

NRD San Francisco showed it's fighting spirit by participating in Born to Fight, an amateur martial arts tournament held in San Jose July 23.

NC1(SS/SW) Horatio Brooks, Leads Department Supervisor, made a connection with three-time world champion martial artist Cung Le and his wife Patty when he walked into their martial arts studio wearing his uniform.

“He came to the studio to work out and when I saw the uniform I thought he might be interested in sponsoring the tournament last year,” Patty Le said. “When he came he saw young men and women who believe in something positive, who believe in being healthy, who believe in being outgoing and who believe in keeping busy – a perfect match for the Navy.”

Brooks presented the International Kickboxing Federation championship belt to women's 154 lb. Champion Elaina Maxwell. The event also served as a Team USA trial.

The event produces a good number of leads and, according to Brooks, the Navy's participation resulted in 15 contracts last year. One mother walked up to the recruiting table outside the event with her 17-year old son. “He needs to get his life going in the right direction,” she said. “That's all I want for him.” The son said he was looking for “something challenging.”

SGLI coverage increasing to $400,000

The maximum level of Servicemembers' Group Life Insurance coverage will be increased from $250,000 to $400,000 on September 1, 2005. Anyone eligible for SGLI coverage on September 1, 2005, will be covered for $400,000 under SGLI, even if they previously declined or elected lesser coverage. If a servicemember wants no coverage or less than the maximum, they will have to go to their Personnel Office and re-elect no coverage or less than the maximum.

SGLI Coverage Enhances Financial Security

Service members' Group Life Insurance (SGLI) offers expanded coverage for spouses and children of armed service members, allowing for a more secure future for many military families. SGLI is a low-cost group life insurance for active-duty and reserve service members, as well as for students attending the four armed-service academies. If a service member's spouse is also a member of the armed services, he or she is eligible for the same insurance coverage under SGLI.

SGLI coverage for spouses and children was expanded as the result of the Veterans' Survivor Benefits Improvements Act, which went into effect in November 2001. According to the Veterans Administration (VA), the expansion in coverage for spouses and children is designed to help with the financial burden that can occur for service members and their families when a spouse dies.

Coverage for the Whole Family

Service members may currently receive up to $250,000 of life insurance coverage, available in $10,000 increments, and their spouses and children are allowed up to $100,000 and $10,000, respectively, according to the VA. The amount of spousal coverage cannot be greater than that of the service member.

Coverage is automatic for dependent children, stepchildren or adopted children who are listed as dependents in the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System (DEERS), and is obtained at no cost to the service member. Also, children who are full-time students between the ages of 18 and 23 are automatically covered under the life insurance plan.

Spousal coverage is also automatic. However, the premiums are deducted from a service member's monthly pay until separation or retirement from the military. Monthly premiums for spousal coverage are based on the spouse's age, and are automatically set to $100,000, unless the service member's own coverage is less. A chart showing premium costs is available through the SGLI web site. To find the chart, link to "Frequently Asked Questions" under "Amount of Coverage."

Other Options

A service member or spouse can choose to convert SGLI coverage into a commercial policy at any time. In case of death, divorce or separation from the military, the coverage must be converted within 120 days. The Office of Service member's Group Life Insurance can provide information regarding the SGLI conversion to a private plan and also a list of participating insurance companies.

When You or Your Spouse Leave the Military

After a service member separates from the military, the service member and family members will continue to be covered for 120 days at no cost. After 120 days, the SGLI policy can be rolled into the Veterans' Group Life Insurance (VGLI) program, or it can be converted into a new policy with a private insurer.

If a service member declines coverage for either himself/herself or for his/her spouse, a form (SGLV8286A) must be completed and submitted to the VA. Disenrollment of the plan then will become effective the first day of the month following submission of the form. For example, if a service member submits his or her request to be disenrolled from the SGLI plan on March 12, 2006, his disenrollment will begin April 1, 2006.

Christmas Comes to the District in April, Courtesy of Recruiters

Thirty-seven Sailors and family members from NRD San Francisco spent the last Saturday in April aiding the needy in two Northern California cities.

Twelve recruiters joined approximately 50 civilians in restoring a house in San Leandro while 25 Sailors and family members made repairs on another in Sacramento April 30.

In San Leandro, a quiet suburban neighborhood of large houses and well-tended lawns, held the home of an elderly couple unable to maintain or repair it. The Christmas in April organization, which helps low-income, the elderly, the disabled or families with children, selected this home for repairs and refurbishment.

"It's about helping lower-income senior and disabled people live decently if they don't have the necessary resources," Erica Bradley, Christmas in April of Castro Valley board member, said. "We're referred by neighbors, friends and agencies."

The Castro Valley chapter had more than 1,000 volunteers repairing 11 April 30.

Between trips carrying boxes to a quickly filling dumpster, Aviation Electronics Mate 1st Class (AW) Clemaus Tervalon said he wanted to be useful. "Cleaning this house is important for the people who live here. I like doing it and I would do it again."

The San Leandro house was the first volunteer experience for Cryptologic Technician Technical 2nd Class (SW) Shayne Franklin. "The best thing about this is helping somebody out," he said. "This is our area. We live and work around here. Our helping shows that Sailors can do more than just fight wars."

Bradley was grateful for the large number of Navy volunteers working on the San Leandro project. She said there skills were an asset. "The majority of them were skilled in some aspect, like installing hardware or how to mask off a room for painting," she said. "We went above and beyond our goal on the project – one of our more successful this year."

In Sacramento, 25 recruiting personnel and family members were joined by an equal number of civilians at one of 16 repair projects organized by Rebuilding America in association with Christmas in April.

"We painted a house and garage, put up a fence, cleared hedges and bushes and hauled sod," said Command Master Chief (SS) Wesley Harper, NRD San Francisco Command Master Chief, who worked on the Sacramento project. "It was a good day. It made you feel good when you were done," he continued.

Zone Supervisor in the Spotlight—Southern Zone

Zone Supervisor in the Spotlight – Southern Zone

Q: How has being a Zone Supervisor changed your perspective on recruiting?

A: It gives me a greater appreciation of the work the RinCs and recruiters do to accomplish mission, because recruiting is a challenging job and recruiting personnel give so much of their time and energy.

Q: What's your favorite part of being a Zone Supervisor?

A: Being a positive role model for my RinCs and recruiters

Q: What are your strengths and weaknesses as a zone supervisor?

A: My biggest strength is being a team motivator, because motivation is a driving force in recruiting. My biggest weakness is trying to be everywhere at once. I want to see each recruiter every day and sometimes that's not effective because it's not about the quantity of time, but the quality of time I spend with recruiters. It's more effective for me to be in one station per day because I can then focus on that station."
